Congratulations, Hermosa Beach You are Southern California's Greenest City this Earth Month!

Hermosa Beach, led by Mayor Peter Tucker, has won the title of Southern California's greenest city for Earth Month. Hermosa Beach fended off strong challenges from Redondo Beach, Gardena, Long Beach, Villa Park, Agoura Hills, Torrance and Monrovia to claim the title after a 30-day competition among Southern California mayors to see whose city could be the most water wise for the month of April. As part of the competition, residents like you throughout southern California made a series of online commitments on behalf of their city at www.mywaterpledge.com to save water, energy, and reduce pollution over a one-year period.

As a participating resident of the winning city, you are eligible to receive fantastic Southern California prizes!

Water Bottles Saved: 28,125

Hazardous Waste Avoided: 1,496 lbs.

Oil Saved: 7,312.5 gal.

Mayors from more than 20 cities, representing over 1.5 million people, actively participated in the challenge, which was developed by famed artist and conservationist Wyland. The challenge was part of the Earth Month Heroes Campaign to spotlight environmental heroes in our community and to encourage simple changes that residents can make to use water more efficiently. Participating mayors such as Joe Carchio of Huntington Beach, Frank Scotto of Torrance, Bob Foster of Long Beach, Paul Tanaka of Gardena, Dave Leckness of Mission Viejo, and Laura Friedman of Glendale, all launched inter-city public awareness campaigns to promote local interest and participation in the challenge.

The Wyland Foundation, a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization founded in 1993 by environmental marine life artist Wyland, is dedicated to promoting, protecting, and preserving the world's ocean, waterways, and marine life. The foundation encourages environmental awareness through education programs, life-size public arts projects, and community events. Visit us at www.wylandfoundation.org.
